The Institute for Women’s Leadership and Social Responsibility

PROUDLY PRESENTS

2013-2014 Distinguished Speakers Series:

Women’s Leadership in Activism and Law, Global Corporations, Research, Archivism, Authorship, National Defense, and Psychology.

Tuesdays, Cottey College, Missouri Recital Hall, 7:00 p.m.
The Institute’s Mission

The Institute for Women’s Leadership and Social Responsibility, established in the fall of 2010, supports Cottey College’s mission to “educate women” so they may realize their full potential as “learners, leaders, and citizens.” Presently, the Institute is a unique instructional, research, and experiential “catalyst” for Cottey College, charged with purposefully advancing baccalaureate programs of study in business administration—management, English, environmental studies, international relations and business, liberal arts, and psychology with interdisciplinary and global perspectives on women’s leadership and social responsibility.

As its mission evolves, the Institute also will serve as Cottey’s external programming entity to provide continuing education to women of all ages and walks of life with opportunities to remain actively engaged as life-long learners, accomplished leaders, and socially-conscious citizens of uncompromising character.

Event Information

Each event is held on a Tuesday and will begin at 7:00 p.m. in the Missouri Recital Hall of the Haidee and Allen Wild Center for the Arts at Cottey College. The Series is open to the public and FREE of charge. All attendees are welcome to the reception that follows each presentation at approximately 8:15 p.m. in the Center’s Weber Foyer.

For more information about the Series, contact the Institute for Women’s Leadership and Social Responsibility using the information provided on the back of this brochure.
Tracy Nowski, J.D., recently rejoined the Washington, D.C. office of McKinsey & Company as a Senior Associate. She began her career with McKinsey in the management consulting firm’s Atlanta office, serving private sector clients on strategic and operational issues. Ms. Nowski later received a fellowship to join McKinsey’s Social Sector Office and served exclusively non-profits, multilaterals, and foundations in the U.S. and abroad with a focus on women’s economic empowerment and public health.

Ms. Nowski grew up in Toronto, Canada, where she attended a single-sex school from 7th through 12th grade. The opportunity to see firsthand what women and girls were capable of as scholars, leaders, and professionals had a lasting impression on her, and sparked her interest in women’s rights.

Ms. Nowski pursued an A.B. at Harvard College in the Studies of Women, Gender, and Sexuality, graduating summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. She was awarded the Harvard College Women’s Leadership Award in recognition of her work to advance the status of women in the community, and received a Hoopes Prize for her undergraduate thesis on female political candidates.

Hoping to increase her effectiveness as an advocate for the rights of women and girls, Ms. Nowski completed a J.D. at the Yale Law School. As the Chair of Yale Law Women, she helped lead a once-in-a-decade empirical study of the gender dynamics at the law school, as well as the organization’s annual report on the family friendliness of private law firms. She has done litigation work for the Women’s Rights Project of the American Civil Liberties Union, as well as policy and advocacy projects for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

For seven years, Ms. Nowski has served on the Board of Directors of Strong Women, Strong Girls, a national non-profit mentoring program for at-risk girls, and is currently Chair of its Development Committee.
Joyce Roché, Ph.D. served as President and Chief Executive Officer (2000-2010) of Girls, Inc., a national non-profit research, education, and advocacy organization established to “inspire all girls to be strong, smart, and bold”. Prior to her oversight of Girls, Inc., Dr. Roché was an independent marketing consultant, as well as the President and Chief Operating Officer of Carson Products Company (1996-98), and the Director of Southern New England Telecommunications Corporation (1997-1998). She also held senior marketing positions with Carson Products Company, Revlon, Inc., and Avon, Inc. She served on the board of directors of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. (1998-2008), The May Department Stores Company (2003-06), and she currently is a member of the boards of directors of (1) AT&T, Inc., where she serves on the Public Policy and Nominating and Governance Committees; (2) Macy’s, Inc., where she serves on the Audit and Nominating and Governance Committees; and (3) Tupperware Brands Corporation, where she serves as chair of the Compensation Committee. She also serves as a board member of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges (AGB), as chair for the Board of Trustees for Dillard University in New Orleans, and on the board of The National Underground Railroad Freedom Center.

Dr. Roché has been featured on the cover of Fortune magazine (1997), and Business Week magazine named her “One of the Top Managers to Watch” (1998). Black Enterprise magazine recognized her as one of the “40 Most Powerful Black Executives” (1994).

Dr. Roché is a graduate of Dillard University, and she holds a MBA from Columbia University. She also has been awarded honorary doctorate degrees from Dillard University and North Adams State College in North Adams, MA.

Her newest publication, The Empress Has No Clothes: The Imposter Syndrome, was released nationally in 2013.
Jean Chamberlin is the vice president of Program Management for Boeing Defense, Space and Security (BDS). Named to this position in 2013, Chamberlin leads a team that provides BDS program managers with best practices, processes, and tools throughout the program lifecycle. She also oversees Program Management talent and leadership development through formal education and training, on-the-job/rotational experience, skills assessment, and succession planning.

Other senior leadership roles she has held at Boeing have included vice president and general manager, Airlift and Tankers division; and vice president and general manager, Global Mobility Systems, leading the C-17 and Advanced Mobility Systems programs.

Ms. Chamberlin previously served as the vice president and general manager of Mobility, a division of the Boeing Military Aircraft business unit, where she was responsible for business growth and program execution on a range of strategic national military customers. The Mobility portfolio included the KC-46 Tanker, H-47 Chinook, V-22 Osprey, and C-17 Globemaster III programs.

Ms. Chamberlin has also held a variety of progressively responsible positions at Boeing in operations, engineering, and program management. She served as program director for Airborne Warning Systems.

Ms. Chamberlin led the System Engineering, Integration and Test team as director for Space and Intelligence Systems National Programs. She also served as director of Weapon System Engineering and Integration Test for the Comanche Boeing/Sikorsky joint venture, and as program manager for Boeing’s portion of the Engineering, Manufacturing and Development contract. She was also program manager for Boeing’s role on the B-2 Bomber program.

Ms. Chamberlin is also a pilot and aeronautical engineer who earned a master’s degree in engineering management as a Sloan fellow at Stanford University, and an undergraduate degree from the University of Washington.
Carol S. Pearson, Ph.D., and D.Min., is an internationally known authority on archetypes and their application to everyday life and work. Her early work in this field produced books, monographs, and instrumentation that have helped people all over the world find their purpose and to live more fulfilling and successful lives through an increase in their archetypal narrative intelligence.

Such books include The Hero Within: Six Archetypes We Live By and Awakening the Heroes Within: Twelve Archetypes To Help Us Find Ourselves and Transform Our World. Dr. Pearson’s more recent work helps individuals and leaders not only achieve success in their careers but also to develop workplaces that are healthier for employees and that help organizations achieve their goals. Publications on this subject include The Hero and the Outlaw: Building Extraordinary Brands Through the Power of Archetypes (co-authored by Margaret Mark); Mapping the Organizational Psyche: A Jungian Theory of Organizational Dynamics and Change (co-authored by John Corlett); and The Transforming Leader: New Approaches to Leadership for the Twenty-First Century (ed.), which grew out of a three year project with the Fetzer Institute that she co-led.

A respected scholar and higher education administrator, Dr. Pearson served most recently as Executive Vice President/Provost and then President of the Pacifica Graduate Institute. Previously, she was Professor of Leadership Studies in the School of Public Policy at the University of Maryland and the Director of the James MacGregor Burns Academy of Leadership. During her tenure, the Academy was the incubator of the International Leadership Association (ILA), and Dr. Pearson was a member of ILA’s Board of Directors.

Currently, she is engaged in writing a guide to women’s success and fulfillment, serving as an advisor to organizations and their leaders, and responding to invitations for speaking engagements, leading workshops or trainings, and media interviews.

During her stay on the Cottey campus in January of 2014, Dr. Pearson will serve as Cottey’s Scholar-in-Residence.
Jacquelyn L. Borgeson was born in New Jersey and when she was a small child, her family moved to Port Clinton, Ohio, a small fishing community located on the southern shore of Lake Erie. After completing a Bachelor of Arts degree focused on Ancient Egypt at Cumberland College in Kentucky, Ms. Borgeson returned to Ohio and earned a Masters of Arts Degree in Museum Studies from Wright State University (WSU) in Dayton.

In 1995, shortly after graduation from WSU, Ms. Borgeson was hired by the Martin and Osa Johnson Safari Museum in Chanute, Kansas. Initially, she held two titles: curator of education and conservation curator; then in 1997, she was promoted to chief curator. As of 2008, Ms. Borgeson now serves as Curator Emeritus (active) of the Martin and Osa Johnson Safari Museum, and is responsible for developing conservation programs and coordinating the Safari Film Festival.

Ms. Borgeson has curated several touring exhibitions and she is the liaison between the Safari Museum and its sister museums in Burkina Faso, West Africa and in Sabah, Malaysia. She has also been a keynote speaker and presented travelogues about Martin and Osa Johnson. Her fascination with languages and a love of travel, have led her to explore 44 of the US states and 16 countries on five continents.

Recently, Ms. Borgeson was invited to serve as a National Heritage Speaker in Ireland for the premiere exhibition focused on the works by Elizabeth Main Le Blond, another pioneering woman whose accomplishments are housed also in the Safari Museum. Ms. Borgeson also will present a travelogue of Osa Johnson, focusing on both her leadership in life and her legacy that have inspired untold generations of women around the world.

Ms. Borgeson is a proud PEO sister from Chapter DD in Chanute, Kansas.

The Safari Museum is honored to exhibit its African Mende Three-Dimensional Women’s Helmet Masks in the PEO Gallery of the Haidee and Allen Wild Center for the Arts at Cottey College, January 13 through February 14, 2014.
Rear Admiral (RADM) Sandra L. Stosz serves as the 40th Superintendent, and is a 1982 graduate of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy (USCGA).

RADM Stosz is a woman who has achieved many “firsts”. Many opportunities were afforded to her as a woman officer in the U.S. Coast Guard that were closed to many women in the Navy. As a member of the USCGA’s third graduating class to contain women, RADM Stosz was the first female assigned to a law-enforcement vessel to enforce fishing and drug laws on fishing fleets off the nation’s Pacific coastline; she was the first female graduate of the USCGA to achieve Flag rank, and she is the first woman appointed as a Superintendent to any of the nation’s five federal service academies.

Prior to her appointment as Superintendent of the USCGA, RADM Stosz was a career surface operations officer with twelve years at sea, including two afloat commands in which she had the distinct honor and privilege of being the Coast Guard’s Director of Reserve and Leadership, where she raised the Coast Guard Reserve by more than 500 personnel within a year’s time, in direct response to the Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill, and also served as the Commanding Officer of the U.S. Coast Guard Training Center (boot camp) at Cape May, New Jersey. She was the first woman to command a Coast Guard cutter and ice-breaking tug in the Great Lakes. As an ensign on the USCG cutter Glacier, she was afloat in Haiti, New Zealand, Antarctica, and the South Pacific islands. People Magazine has described her career as a “lifetime adventure”.

RADM Stosz earned a MBA from Northwestern University’s J.L. Kellog Graduate School of Management and a Master of National Security Strategy degree from the National War College. She has been awarded three Legion of Merit Medals.

Her presentation will focus on tools women leaders can utilize to discover opportunities in adversity and how to succeed “despite the odds”.
Kathleen M. Lawrence, LMFT

Tuesday, April 8, 2014
Cottey College, Missouri Recital Hall, 7:00 p.m.

Topic: “Women’s Leadership in Psychology.”

Kathleen M. Lawrence, LMFT, is a licensed clinical psychotherapist in private practice in Richland, Washington. She works with individuals, couples and families from a systemic perspective, meaning that she addresses problems that are embedded in a complex social system rather than isolated within the individual.

Ms. Lawrence is an owner and trainer/facilitator with Fore-sight Solutions, which hosts seminars and workshops using the Myers-Briggs Personality Inventory. She has been a speaker/facilitator at national conferences on ethics, morals, values, human behavior and personality preferences. She has given psychology seminars on chronic illness and the family, the effects of over-indulgence in children and adults, Autism in the family, sex and sexuality, and dealing with difficult people.

Ms. Lawrence is the former co-host of Mind Matters Radio in Seattle, WA, whose past radio guests included Dr. Bernie Siegel, Dr. Rich Hansen, Sharon Salzberg, Dr. Lisa Randall, Brant Secunda, Dr. Eben Alexander, and Dr. Amir Levine. Ms. Lawrence will soon host her own radio show in Richland, WA.

For the past five years, Ms. Lawrence has served the U.S. Military Academy at West Point as a member of its annual National Conference on Ethics in America.

Ms. Lawrence is a Clinical member of AAMFT, Associate member of the American Psychological Association, a former adjunct at two Seattle area colleges, and former Board Chair of Foundations for Success. She has authored numerous articles on child, couple, and family therapy, including, “What Works in Therapy?”, and, “For the Love of Fear.”

Prior to becoming a psychotherapist, Ms. Lawrence worked more than 20 years in law and business origination. While she is passionate about her current work as a psychotherapist, she attributes her years in law and business as the foundation for making her an effective family and corporate mediator.
THANK YOU

The Institute for Women’s Leadership and Social Responsibility wishes to acknowledge and thank the faculty, staff, and students of Cottey College, as well as members of the Nevada public, who have helped to make the annual Distinguished Speakers Series a success. In addition, the Institute wishes to acknowledge and thank Dr. Steven B. Zeiler and Mr. James D. Zeiler for their monetary gift to Cottey College in support of the Shirley and Burt Zeiler Endowment Fund that was designed and established in December of 2012 to support the Distinguished Speakers Series; others who may wish to monetarily support the Series, or other programs sponsored by the Institute, are encouraged to contact the Office of Institutional Advancement at Cottey. Lastly, the Institute wishes to recognize the generosity of the speakers who participate in its annual Distinguished Speakers Series, many of whom waive, donate, or significantly reduce their speaking fees and spend additional time on campus with our students.

We’re on the Web!

twitter.com/cotteyinstitute

Cottey College Women’s Institute

Bachelor of Arts Programs at Cottey College

The Institute for Women’s Leadership and Social Responsibility
Cottey College
Rubie Burton Academic Center (RBAC 145)
1000 W. Austin
Nevada, Missouri 64772
417-667-8181 ext. 2116
www.cotey.edu/institute
Sonia S. Cowen, Ph.D., Executive Director